

INFORMED CONSENT FOR INDIVIDUAL COUNSELING SERVICES

Thank you for choosing to initiate counseling with Alyssa Gavulic, PhD, LMHC, LMFT at Crosspoint Counseling Center. We realize that starting counseling is a major decision and you may have many questions. This document is intended to inform you of our policies, state and federal laws and your rights. If you have other questions or concerns, please ask and we will try our best to give you all the information you need.

PROFESSIONAL INFORMATION

My name is Alyssa Gavulic. I am a Licensed Mental Health Counselor and a Licensed Marriage and Family Therapist. I have a BA in Psychology from St. Edward's University and I have my MA in Professional Counseling from Liberty University. I also have a PhD in Counseling Education and Supervision from Liberty University. I have sought additional postgraduate training in several therapeutic protocols and am committed to continually researching how to integrate evidence-based counseling techniques and biblical truth into my counseling.

COUNSELING APPROACH

My basic approach to counseling is based on a holistic view of human functioning and attempts to explore the various aspects of an individual's biological, psychological, social, and spiritual health which may be contributing to their presenting problems. To comprehensively address my clients on each of these levels, several counseling theories and techniques are incorporated into the counseling process. Each intervention used is directed at assisting my clients to overcome any obstructions that may be deterring them from achieving their own personal potential for optimal health and wellness. This is a highly collaborative and interactive counseling process that strongly encourages client feedback.

LENGTH OF THERAPY

The length of therapy is largely dependent on the presenting problems, negotiated goals of therapy, and the rate of improvement. However, most counseling courses will last through about six to eight weekly or bi-monthly sessions. As we near the completion of these six to eight sessions, we can reassess therapeutic progress and extend the number of sessions as necessary. The counseling client relationship can be terminated if it is deemed ineffective or non-therapeutic. An appropriate referral will be given if the client desires to seek continued services.

CONFIDENTIALITY

The information exchanged in counseling sessions is confidential and will not be shared with other parties except in the following exceptions and only to the extent necessary:

1. When written authorization from the client, parent, or legal guardian has been attained.
2. When the client is seeking reimbursement from an insurance company or a third party, diagnosis, symptoms and treatment plans may be shared with these parties.
3. When there is an apparent indication of eminent danger to self or others, or when there is an indication of past or present child or elder abuse, appropriate authorities will be notified.

4. When a court order requiring the release of relevant information is filed, only the applicable information and/or records will be supplied.
5. When the complexity of a case requires consultation with other professionals, or recorded sessions are used for teaching or supervision purposes, circumstantial information may be shared but the individual's identity will be protected.
6. When cell phone or e-mail communication is used, this information may be intercepted by third parties. Therefore, these means of communicating should be used restrictively.
